

July 24, 2017 – Culinary Farms is pleased to announce the sale of our company to BC Foods, a global producer, processor and supplier of a wide range of high-quality dehydrated vegetables, fruits, spices and herbs.

BC Foods' full line of dehydrated vegetables, onion and garlic will be enhanced by the addition of Culinary Farms' range of dried tomato products, numerous varieties of dried chile, naturally smoked ingredients, as well as a line of frozen pastes, purees and other culinary ingredients designed for the industrial food market. Culinary Farms' expertise in developing targeted flavors to meet product development requirements was of particular importance in driving the acquisition. BC Foods' long-term strategy is to offer the most complete and complementary line of ingredients to the industrial global food ingredient market. The acquisition of Culinary Farms, along with the recent acquisition of Unified Foods, provides important steps in achieving the long-term goal.

Culinary Farms will be a stand-alone corporation with the same management team, location, supply chain, distribution network and employees as before. Over time there will be efforts to find synergies between BC Foods and Culinary Farms to provide the best offering to customers from either company.
